nThrive Helps Meet Health Care Job Shortages Supporting Careers for Military Veterans at HFMA ANI 2017

Company hosts game at booth 1721 that donates to Hire Heroes USA

Orlando, Florida, June 26, 2017 – nThrive™, an independent Patient-to-PaymentSM solutions company, is supporting Hire Heroes USA through donations at booth 1721 during the Healthcare Financial Management Association Annual National Institute (HFMA ANI) Conference. The company will also showcase its exclusive nThrive Education™ Transitions program that is helping health care providers address job shortages, while giving back to veterans who have served our country.

In the exhibit hall, visitors to nThrive booth 1721 can spin the wheel for charity to win prizes and nThrive will match the dollar amounts spun on the wheel. All proceeds will be donated to Hire Heroes USA. The charity empowers U.S. military members, veterans and military spouses to succeed in the civilian workforce, while maintaining a singular focus on employment. nThrive is committed to supporting the program's success, and has collaborated with Hire Heroes USA on this cause for nine years. So far nThrive has contributed more than $250,000 to Hire Heroes USA.

To further support Hire Heroes USA, nThrive Education™ has created the Transitions Program that not only empowers military veterans, unemployed and underemployed populations, but also alleviates the health care job shortage of qualified workers across the nation. nThrive is partnering with health care organizations nationwide to provide education and training to populations struggling to find suitable employment, many with no health care experience at all. Upon successful completion of the program, graduates qualify for high-demand health care jobs, such as medical coders, billers, patient access representatives, clinical documentation improvement specialists, and patient financial service representatives. This program can be used by health care organizations to support internal growth, while building and sustaining positive community relationships.

nThrive looks forward to giving back to those who have served and in return improving health care for every one in every community.
